Those who support baseball do not pay to see victous assaults, to say nothing of constant bickering and umpire "baiting" on the diamond, and just so sure as they continue the better element will withdraw its patronage. They will not continue, either, unless I am sadly mistaken, as the owners, so blind add mistaken, as the owners, so blind the love of the sake of the game, but the trouble is winning teams are same, but the trouble is winning teams are large attentioned in such a loud and insistent voice by graduates and undergraduates. support baseball do not pay to see vicious as they have been, are almost sure to take the lesson of recent outbreaks in Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Jersey City to heart in a way that will prevent repetition, at least in the near future.

Yale Alumni Weekly" says in part:

Graduate sentiment can only express itself in severe condemnation of the foreign spirit which recently has come into Yale baseball, to the deterioration of the sport and to the injury of Yale's good reputation. Without question the time has come for plain speaking by the graduates on this particular matter. It is the undergraduates' business—it is Yale's business—to see to it that undergraduate sports do not become commercialized and professionalized. Upon the question of employing professional coaches for Yale teams there is naturally a division of authoritative opinion. We do not propose to discuss that question now. But if graduates differ honestly regarding the fundamental policy of utilizing outside drillmasters, there certainly is little or no difference of opinion upon the question of how far these professional coaches shall be permitted to go. "The Alumni Weekly" believes graduate sentiment to be nearly unanimous that if Yale is to have professional coaches they must be absolutely under the control of undergraduate captains and of graduate advisers. It is evident that this is the only possible policy in Yale undergraduate sport

Star Twirler of Home Team Helps New York to Score by Passes, However.

[B) Telegraph to The Tribune.] Cleveland, July 16 .- The Cleveland Naps took the second game from the New York Yankees to-day, in a drizzling rain, by a score of 6 to 2. It was anybody's game up in five runs. The Yankees had scored two tallies up to that time, and felt they had the game well in hand. Vaughn pitched a good game for the Chase aggregation. It was only in the sixth and seventh innings that the Naps could bunch hits. Gregg was a triffe wild and both pitchers were bothered by the wet ball. The Cleveland twirler allowed only four hits, bases on balls aiding the visitors in run making. Fisher at the plate did some great execution with his whip, nipping five in attempting to pilfer second. The Yankees fielded loosely at times, but Chase played a great game at first and Magner showed up well at second. The Naps went hitless until the third inning, while the Yankees started scoring in the second. Cree waited for four wide ones and stole. He took third on a passed ball as Fisher dropped Knight's third strike and threw to Stovall for the putout. Chase was will furn their attention chiefly to the there with the timely bingle, rapping the ball sharply to left centre and scoring Cree. The snappy first baseman died steal-

In the third inning the Naps got a look at third base. Turner walked, went to sec ond when Fisher beat a bunt and took wood far overshadows the record of any third when Butcher rolled to Chase. Olson could not bring Turner home, as he swung at three fast ones.

The Yankees were retired in order in third and fourth. In the fifth Knight lifted to Jackson and Chase singled for the second time to left field. He was forced by Magner, who promptly died stealing. The fourth and fifth were equally as unproductive of runs for the Naps. Cleveland stock went away down in the sixth, when the Yankees scored their second run. Gregg hit Blair and Vaughn sacrificed him to second. He scored on Daniels's single to left centre. It looked as if days' pay, for indifferent ball playing in the Yankees had started a runfest when Daniels took second on Wolter's grounder to Gregg and pilfered third. Hartzell walked and died by the Fisher-Olson route, ending the inning.

The Naps came back in their half hard. Butcher and Olson singled and the former scored on Jackson's drive along the third base line. # Baseball & Yachting & Lawn Tennis & Golf & Cycling & Track Athletics & Swimming FALL WINS FAST MATCH Defeats Mann on Courts of Sk wanoy Country Club.

MAJOR SHOWS HIS SKILL

Former Interscholastic Cham. pion Disposes of Coughlan with Ease.

Fighting desperately against the passing drives of his opponent, P. F. Mann, of Yale, met defeat in the third round of the Siwanoy Cup singles yesterday in the tournament in progress on the courts of the Siwanoy Country Club, of Mount Vernon, The Yale player was defeated by F. A. Fall after three gruelling sets at 6-4, 4-6, 9-7, Mann was four times within a stroke of winning the match in the third set. He worked his net attack up to a terrific pitch, Still, even working with the rapidity of execution with which he brought off his shots, he failed to overcome Fall's amazing dexterity at finding the opening and slipping the ball through it for the ace. At the base line and in midcourt Fall was alert, powerful and steady. His fore and back hand drives seldom missed the mark, so that he pinched out the close games and advanced into the semi-final round.

Cedric A. Major, the former interscholastic champion, appeared in the tournament and won his first round contest by showing remarkable skill at placing. He disposed of E. R. Coughlan, of the local club, in straight sets by a score of 6-2, 6-2 Major was particularly good on his court covering. He tried for every shot and was quick in slashing through for placement when he had drawn Coughlan out of post-

The beginning of the doubles produced a three set volleying match, in which E. M. Lord and E. W. Breck defeated George Clark and A. H. Ham at 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, The first set was a rattling session of TIRED OF BEING TERRIERS twelve games. Both of the pairs stood up to the net, taking all of the shots at close range and trying to drive the others out of position by sheer force. In this set Clark and Ham managed to win at 7-5 Boston, July 16.-Charles Herzog and but were compelled to let down on their "Doo" Miller, shortstop and right fielder, speed in the second and third sets.
